NetMass Acquires Online Backup Provider Professional Offsite Data Backup, Inc.

NetMass, a leading online backup provider, announced today that it has completed the acquisition of New York-based Professional Offsite Data Backup, Inc, a privately-held provider of online backup and recovery services. Professional Offsite Data Backup, Inc, (PODBI) has been providing an online backup subscription service for nearly a decade.

Available immediately, PODBI customers will have access to the latest NetMass backup solutions, including the company's award-winning enterprise backup solution, ServerSafe, as well as the company's easy-to-use online backup service for Windows PCs, servers and Macs.

"This was a targeted acquisition and is a very natural move for us because of our close relationship with PODBI and existing partnership," said NetMass CEO Mark Martin. "We look forward to serving PODBI customers with our expanded lineup of data protection services."

"PODBI customers now have access to our newest online backup software and services," said NetMass President and CTO Stephen Perkins. "And they will have access to our flagship data protection service, ServerSafe, which features hot backup of Exchange and SQL databases and offers sophisticated policy-based backup management. We will continue to bring enterprise-quality services to SMB customers at affordable prices."

Since 1998, NetMass has been providing automated online backup solutions to organizations seeking to protect critical data. Information about NetMass products and services can be found at www.netmass.com.
